

“I appreciate the company’s willingness to work with architects to develop custom mixes and through-the-tile colors. The composition of the tile and the fact that the color is throughout is especially valuable in the harsh seacoast environment”. This is a tile that is specifically developed for cold weather is well suited to the harsh New Jersey coast, which see extremes from over 100 degrees to well below 0. Also, the nature of the tile molds and production is such that Vande Hey tiles have a much more natural and organic style and feel than the other concrete tile products I’ve used.”
